U. S. EXPORTS FOR 12 MONTHS $7,415,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The U. S. trade with foreign nations has grown enormously and reached $10,500,000,000 a year, with a balance in favor of this country amounting to $4,125,000,000.

Statistics for the year ending Aug. 31, just issued by the department of commerce, show that the year's commerce exceeded that of last year by more than $1,500,000,000. Exports for the year were $7,415,000,000 and imports $3,233,000,000.

Northwest's Wheat Supply Depleted

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 1.—A condition never before experienced by it confronts the flour milling industry of the North Pacific states at this time. Because of the inadequate supply of hard wheat in the middle western states, that of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, is being drawn upon to such an extent that local millers are scurrying to the hard wheat districts bent on augmenting their supply of this cereal.

League of Nations Candidate Elected

GADSDEN, Ala., Oct. 1.—(By Associated Press).—In an election in which the League of Nations was one of the leading issues, L. B. Rainey, Democrat, was elected yesterday over C. B. Kennamer, Republican.

Teachers Fatten Health Center Fund Officials Pledge Their Aid to Project

School teachers of Oakland are making generous contributions toward the $200,000 fund for the proposed purchase of a site and erection of a modern building to accommodate the Alameda County Public Health center, the only institution of its kind on the Pacific Coast. The committee canvassing the public schools reports the following contributions:

Lafayette, $48; Beulah school, $1; Cole school, $10.50; Durant school, $30.50; Mothers' club, $5; Fremont school, $28; Fruitvale school, $13; Garfield school, $12; Hawthorne school, $22; Jefferson school, $21; $100.

The following personal contributions toward the building fund have been received in addition to those already published:

Fred Hunter, $10; L. Morris Cox, $5; Lewis B. Avery, $2; Mrs. Sue Frauts, $5.

The following personal contributions toward the building fund have been received in addition to those already published:

P. E. Bowles, $1000; Judges of superior court, $120; Western Laboratories, $100; Dr. Charles H. Rowe, $100.

GEN. PAT EGAN, 78, DIES IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—General Patrick Egan, one of the founders of the Home Rule movement in Ireland and former United States minister to Chile, died at the home of his daughter here last night after an illness of several weeks.

Born in County Longford, Ireland, August 13, 1841, General Egan became an influential business man in Dublin. From boyhood he was identified with the Irish nationalist movement. In addition to being one of the founders of the Home Rule organization in 1871, he also helped to found the Irish Land League in 1879.

Egan, to the House of Representatives from the seventh Alabama district. The former supported the League covenant as drafted, while the latter opposed it.

FRESNO TOBACCO MEN ORGANIZE

FRESNO, Cal., Oct. 1.—The tobacco industry in San Joaquin valley has taken another step forward with the formation of the Fresno Tobacco Company here, composed of all the tobacco growers in the county.

According to the growers the industry is still in its growing stage, although tobacco raising has been in progress for the past ten or twelve years.

Growers state that at present there are ninety acres in the county devoted to tobacco. Last year's crop returns showed that 1000 pounds were returned per acre. Prices last year were between 80 and 85 cents a pound.

Owing to scarcity of water this year, the crop will amount to between 200 and 700 pounds an acre.

GROWERS GET PERMISSION TO CRUSH GRAPES

California grape growers may proceed with the crushing of their grapes for beverage purposes, so long as they do not allow the juice to ferment, according to a ruling made yesterday by Justice Wardell, collector of internal revenue.

Wardell says that the law prohibits the manufacturing and sale of intoxicating liquors, but that growers may have methods whereby they can suspend, or prevent, fermentation, and are entitled to use these, if they choose. The collector of internal revenue cautions that the grapes cannot be used for the manufacture of wine, as it is ordinarily known, even if the wine is to be held for any expected lifting of the prohibition ban.

President Reinhardt Gives Third Lecture

President Aurelia Henry Reinhardt gave her third lecture, "The transport and 1220 industrial systems of the country we are now entering with. We had as well meet it now as any other time." The lecture was given at the Mills hall, the oldest residence hall on the campus, gave their monthly "at home" to their friends.

This morning at chapel, K. C. Leeb, professor of history at the University of California, lectured before the student body on "American Future Relations with Europe."

QUIT CHASING RAINBOWS IS SHERMAN PLEA

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Calling upon the American people to "quit chasing rainbows" and "come back to earth and her laws," Senator Lawrence V. Sherman of Illinois, in an address before the Tariff Club last night denounced efforts to bring the tariff into line with the present form of government.

"It is rapidly becoming a question of whether the American people will have a government of the people or of groups of classes of the people," Senator Sherman said. "The American Federation of Labor and the heads of the railway employees propose to govern the United States. They are now engaged in an active crusade to coerce Congress for or against legislation; they propose to nominate and elect those who will in Congress continue the exercise of their thinking apparatus to enforcement of such legislation as may be recommended by the combined heads of the labor unions of the United States."

Senator Sherman said that the transportation and 1220 industrial systems of the country we are now entering with. We had as well meet it now as any other time. The railway problem is solved properly only by returning the railways to their private owners, subject to reasonable regulation to protect the public against unreasonable rates, unjust discrimination and to secure a fair service for the traffic heads of the country. Government ownership is a huge demerit failure for everybody but the heads of the unions.

Continuing, Senator Sherman said: "We need more men with hooves and fewer living on the man with the hoe. There is no way of escaping hard work."

COBURN MURDER MYSTERY DEEPENS

SAN MATEO, Oct. 1.—Frank Goularte, witness in the investigation of the death of Mrs. Sarah Saltra Coburn, and the victim of an attack said to have been made on him by members of an opposing faction among the murder case witnesses, has been taken to the Red Cross hospital here for treatment.

Goularte says he will be confined to his bed for at least a week. Andrew J. Sterling and Frank Zug are under arrest, charged with having inflicted the beating from which he is suffering.

The attack on Goularte, who, with his father, is one of the witnesses in the case, has brought about a new angle in the investigation of District Attorney Franklin S. Smith in the case. The attack took place near Pescadero. Goularte says that the two men who attacked him also threatened to "get" his father and others concerned in the case.

The two arrested men are free on $250 bail each, this being put up by Dr. W. C. Thompson and William Bennett.

According to Goularte the trouble has arisen because of the desire of a faction among the will beneficiaries to break Mrs. Coburn's will. Mrs. Coburn, widow of Loren Coburn, Pescadero millionaire, was murdered some months ago, being beaten with a club. An investigation of the crime is now under way.

State Conventions Held in New Jersey

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—The Republican and Democratic state conventions were held here yesterday and each adopted a platform for the campaign in New Jersey. The Republicans declared that as the prohibition amendment is part of the federal constitution it is no longer a political issue. This plank met with the approval of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League. The Republicans also recommended that the question of New Jersey's ratification of the woman suffrage amendment be put to a referendum of the state.

The Democratic convention adopted a plan for the immediate ratification for the woman suffrage amendment and declared for opposition to the prohibition amendment by all laws means. The administration of President Wilson was endorsed and he and the Democratic party were congratulated on the successful outcome of the war. A resolution was adopted declaring that the League of Nations covenant should not be approved without giving recognition to the Irish republic.

Red Cross Notes

Oakland Chapter, American Red Cross, requests that Mrs. Minnie Roberts, formerly residing at 1503 Franklin street, Oakland, communicates with Mrs. Frances Berggren, 21 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, New York.

The Red Cross headquarters, where the shop is maintained, along with the administrative and executive offices and home service department, occupies the entire building at 557 Twelfth street, opposite the Orpheum Theater. The Oakland workers are conducting as strenuous work as they carried on through the war.

The following announcement is made: "All men discharged from the service after November 11, 1918, and not receiving the five cents per mile travel allowance, are urged to get their claims in at the earliest possible date. Bring your original discharge or release papers to the office of the home service section, American Red Cross, 557 Twelfth street, Oakland, California, and have the proper forms made out for your claim. The office is open from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m., including Saturdays."

Clarence I. Blotchy Resigns State Job

Clarence I. Blotchy, resident special agent in charge of the Oakland branch office of the California state compensation fund for the past five years, has resigned in order to engage in the mercantile business with his father at Chico. Blotchy is well known in California insurance circles, having entered the business some ten years ago with the former Philadelphia Casualty. Later he was special agent for the Fidelity and Deposit company, resigning to engage in the mercantile business. For the past six years he has been with the state fund.

Burleson Assailed For Not Filling Jobs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Charges that vacancies in 783 presidential postmasterhips are due "apparent" to Postmaster-General Burleson's unwillingness to obey the president's order for the nomination of the candidate fitted the highest by civil service examination were made by Representative Lehtbach, Republican, New Jersey, chairman of the Civil Service Reform Committee, in a speech yesterday in the House.

MONSTER HOTEL COMBINE PLANNED

Bringing together under a close working arrangement twenty-two of the principal hotels of the world, including hotels in the United States, England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Spain and South America, an affiliation was announced yesterday between the Linnard Hotel System and the famous Ritz-Carlton hotels.

D. M. Linnard, president of the California Hotels Company, which operates the Palace and Fairmont hotels, who made the announcement relative to the affiliation, said that the various enterprises will involve a total expenditure of approximately $20,000,000 by the Linnard Hotel System and the Ritz-Carlton.

Under the new arrangement S. W. Stray & Co. will underwrite two 6 per cent serial bond issues amounting in all to $5,500,000.

These new enterprises will comprise: Construction of an $8,000,000 Ritz-Carlton Hotel at Atlantic City, N. J.; addition of 400 rooms to the Ambassador at Atlantic City, N. J.; the building of a chain of California bungalows to be conducted in connection with the Ambassador and the Ritz-Carlton; construction of a large convention hall.

The following are the hotels in the Linnard system: The Palace and the Fairmont, San Francisco; the Maryland, Huntington and Green, Pasadena; the Alexandria and California, Los Angeles; the Belvedere, Santa Barbara; the Ambassador, Atlantic City; and the Linnard, New York, now in course of construction.

The Ritz-Carlton system includes the following: The Ritz, London; the Carlton, London; the Ritz, Paris; the National, Lucerne; the Excelsior, Rome; the Excelsior, Naples; the Royal, Evian-les-Bains; the Ritz, Madrid; the Ritz-Carlton, New York; the Plaza, Buenos Aires.

Air Pilot and Army Man Fall 200 Feet

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 1.—Lieutenant C. W. Pangborn and H. B. Rooney had a narrow escape from death yesterday when the airplane in which they were flying fell to earth from a height variously estimated at from 75 to 200 feet. The accident occurred at Cour d'Alene, Idaho, where Pangborn was engaged in stunt flying, after which he continued to take passengers up.

RAIN IS WORTH MILLIONS, CLAIM

Farmers, orchardists and commission merchants are practically agreed that the rain will do far more good than harm in California. It is pointed out that about the only crop that are liable to be damaged by grapes, berries and late tomatoes. The berry season is getting well along and the supply has been limited for some time.

With the exception of grapes and berries nearly all of the early fruits of the state have been harvested. While some of the early fruits were a little late in ripening, they came into the market unusually fast when the season got well under way, commission merchants say, with the result that the bulk of the crop is under shelter.

It is estimated that many millions of dollars have been saved to the state by the timely rains, which extinguished forest fires that were beyond the control of men who were endeavoring to save vast forest areas.

City Employees Ask for Wage Scale

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 1.—Plans for a general increase of wages for city employees were presented to the City Commission today. It is estimated the raise asked for the city employees will cost the city $150,000 annually, adding between 15 and 21 cents to the tax rate. The Commissioner of Finance has announced that he will request a special election, so the people may determine whether the raises should be made the first of the year.

FINGER PRINTS ON WOMAN'S THROAT CLEW

Finger prints left by the stranger who murdered Mrs. Frances Pandolfi, 55 Lombard street, San Francisco, Monday, may lead to his identification, in the opinion of the police.

Photographs of the prints, left by the stranger in his search for the $2500 hidden in the house, and which constituted the motive for the crime, were photographed by the police yesterday and an effort made to identify the murderer as an ex-convict, upon the theory that the presence of the money in the house had been revealed to a fellow prisoner by Michael Lucia, former Oakland man, who in 1915 murdered his wife, the daughter of Mrs. Pandolfi.

Neighbors of the victim yesterday told the police that the presence of

Johnson Predicts Treaty Changes Says Americans Will Be Protected

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The peace treaty will be ratified with reservations that will protect America.

That is the opinion expressed by Senator Hiram Johnson, who has come home to California, he says, "to preach a faith."

A tumultuous crowd prepared to greet the senator when he delivered his first address here today in his whirlwind tour to answer arguments of President Wilson in favor of the Treaty of Versailles.

Members of the Downtown Association, Advertising Club, Commonwealth Club, Rotary Club and Home Industry League assembled at the Palace Hotel, where Senator Johnson was scheduled to talk after luncheon at 1:30.

The principal address of his visit will be delivered at the Coliseum at 8 o'clock this evening.

The train carrying the lusty campaigner for "Americanism" was accompanied by a large number of the money in the house was known to many friends and acquaintances of the family. The money taken represented the savings of Pandolfi, a shoe chimer.

WILLIAM FARNUM FIGHTS IN GREAT DRAMA OF THE NORTH

WILLIAM FARNUM, who fights his greatest battle in "The Spoilers" at the Franklin Theater today.

Doc Beach's great Alaskan story, "The Spoilers," the story of the days of the gold rush, is playing today at the Franklin theater.

William Farnum as Glenister has the leading role, fights his great battle on the scene, the battle that has since become a classic in moving pictures. Kathleen Williams and Francis Satchell are included in the splendid supporting cast.

WORLD AVOID SERVICE OF NO C. S. CONCERN

"I ask you to unite with me and with the other men in Washington who are making the good fight there, to unite with us that there shall be no selfish boys of our race sent to Russia, Salica, to fight there on foreign lands, wars that are no concern of ours, wars that are declared in secrecy by European and Asiatic diplomacy, and in which our treasure and our blood are to be utilized in the future."

Senator Johnson's speeches today are expected to deal in sensational fashion with some of the phases of the war, he has indicated, of his California talks.

His last address on San Francisco bay will be delivered at a women's luncheon tomorrow at the Fairmont Hotel. He will leave for Los Angeles tomorrow evening.

Senator Johnson in an interview pointed to the leading of American business at Trau, Dalmatia, as a sample of what may be expected under a League of Nations.

"He who cares may see the blood of America poured out in the streets of Europe and Asiatic squabble hereafter," he said.

Johnson was enthusiastically greeted at today's luncheon.

JOHNSON'S SPEECHES.

Senator Johnson said in part: "The mathematical demonstration recently made to you by President Wilson has been a delight and wonder to the world. He proved to you, to the entire satisfaction of those who look in the sunlight of honor, apparently, conclusively, that six equals one and one equals six, and finally that one equals six and six equals one. He showed that the representative of Great Britain at the peace conference, with a future belief Lloyd George, capable, insisted vehemently upon the granting to the British empire of six votes in one vote of the United States, although it was perfectly obvious to Lloyd George that the six votes for which he fought so fervently were of no advantage to him whatsoever."

DISPUTES PRESIDENT.

It is not the fact, as the president says, that in case of a quarrel between Great Britain and the United States, the British empire would be deprived of her six votes.

While Mr. Wilson was indulging in his erroneous presentation of the inference that the British colony could never be considered with reference to the council, Sir Robert Jordan, the Canadian representative, was telling the Canadian parliament the new and definite status of the dominions at the peace conference is further manifested in the constitution of the League of Nations. Since they had enjoyed the same status at the peace conference as that of minor powers, we took the ground that the dominions should be similarly placed in the future international relationship contemplated by the league.

"They are to become members, signatory of the treaty, and the terms of the document make no distinction between them and other signatory members. An official statement as to the true intent and meaning of the treaty was secured by me, and is on record in the archives of the peace conference."

CAN JOIN COUNCIL.

Mr. Wilson is speaking to you of the futurity of the assembly left upon you the impression that the British colonies could be only members of the futile and impotent assembly and could never by virtue of their own league of that important body reach the dignity of membership in the powerful council of the league. Fortunately we have Mr. Wilson's own communication concerned in by Clemenceau and Lloyd George, read to the Canadian parliament contemporaneously with Mr. Wilson's satisfying mathematical demonstration, and this is what Mr. Wilson wrote but which Mr. Wilson did not tell you in his explanation:

"The question having been raised as to the meaning of article XV of the league of nations covenant, we have been requested by Sir Robert Jordan to state whether we concur in his view that upon the true construction of that article and second paragraph of that article representatives of the self-governing dominions of the British Empire may be selected or named as members of the council. We have no hesitation in expressing our entire concurrence in that view. If there were any doubt it would have been entirely removed by the fact that the articles are not subject to a narrow or technical construction."

(Signed) "G. CLEMENCEAU," "WOODROW WILSON," "D. LLOYD GEORGE."

"Dated at the Quai d'Orsay, Paris. The 24th day of May, 1919."

NOT DEBATING SOCIETY.

"Equally in error is the President in his designation of the assembly. It is not a mere debating society. It is not a body of impudence and fatuity. If it were the league would be an egregious fraud."

"Invited states can be admitted upon a two-thirds vote of the assembly and in this assembly, mark the United States had one vote out of 22. The assembly as well as power to admit self-governing states, dominions or colonies by a two-thirds vote. The case in which India, not at all a self-governing dominion or colony, has been admitted to the league upon the instance of Great Britain, may indicate the only limit to the admission of self-governing states, dominions or colonies in future will be the number which they hereafter carve from their increased territories."

"Moreover, under article VI, the assembly may provide for the effective guarantee to be given by applicants for membership and applicants must accept such regulations in regard to its military and naval forces and armaments."

"Under this power the assembly may disannul in force, suspend, mark or prescribe the nature of extent of naval and air forces and armaments. It can compel the unwilling taxpayers of new application for membership to maintain military and naval forces of such character and of such strength and at such places as the assembly may decree."

DISPUTES CITIZEN.

"Let us see then what would happen if a dispute should arise between Great Britain and the United States, and be referred to the assembly, as it must be referred to Great Britain demands it. The United States being a party to the dispute would have no vote in the assembly. The five British dependencies, however, would have their five votes in the assembly. There is no conceivable process of reasoning by which this places the two disputants, Great Britain and the United States, upon an equality. The United States, which is so long as the United States has one friend in the council it should prevent any adverse action by the assembly, and that it did not have at least one friend in the council there would be enough votes to cast the decision against the United States without the five votes of British dependencies. But this argument assumes that the United States is the defendant in the litigation, and that the United States merely endeavors to prevent affirmative action; but, as the United States is the plaintiff in the litigation and is seeking affirmative relief from the League of Nations and assume that all the remaining members of the council favor the United States."

"Great Britain enters the controversy with five votes and the United States with none, and you may add to the five British colonies, the five dependencies, plus India, plus Japan, making seven out of the 22. In order to win, the United States must get therefore twelve out of the remaining sixteen. And when you consider some of the nations that are members of the league, like Liberia, only a league of nations imagination could conjure up success for the United States."

"Would any business man, submit any question of importance to him to a packed jury of this sort?"

"You may prove to the satisfaction of an irrational, international emotion, that one equals six and six equals one, and one equals thirty-two and thirty-two equals one, but singularly enough in all these matters the advantage Great Britain ever has the advantage, and after all it is said the fact remains Great Britain has six votes and our Republic but one."

OAKLAND INVITES HIM.

Official invitation to Senator Hiram Johnson was tendered today by the city council to visit and talk in Oakland. The invitation to be made through a special committee headed by Mayor John L. Davis, who was empowered to invite President Wilson.

Mayor Davis's name was eliminated in a resolution, offered by Com-

Admits Driving Car While Intoxicated

As a result of his arrest late in June, after running his machine into the car of W. A. Daly of Piedmont, and badly damaging it, Aaron L. Jaffe, also of Piedmont, pleaded guilty to the felony offense of driving an automobile while intoxicated today in Police Judge Mortimer Smith's court.

On the stand, Jaffe said he drank several hot toddies and feeling disposed, he started downtown in his car to get some sleeping powder. Witnesses testified his car swayed from one side of the street to the other in the vicinity of Lakeside and Wesley avenue. Daly got in Jaffe's way and in the crash the Daly machine was damaged to the extent of $200, the driver not being injured.

Jaffe will be sentenced Friday.

Who Is the Great Unnamed Poet?

A distinct literary sensation will be sprung in The OAKLAND TRIBUNE of October 5 when two of the best poems of recent years will be printed with only the finger-print of the author as the signature. These poems have been pronounced among the masterpieces of contemporary writers of verse, but the identity of the writer, for reasons of his own, is concealed. The poems have the swing and breadth of Kipling in them. Read them and be the judge!

Most Beautiful Women in the World

Frederick O'Brien, geologist, explorer and editor of the Manila Times, has returned from the Marquesas Islands, down Tahiti way, with details of his discovery of the world's prettiest women—wild women who battled with him in the hills and who are cannibals!

In the Sunday TRIBUNE of October 5 he will tell of his researches. These women are descendants of white explorers who went to the South Seas from Asia in the dawn of civilization. How the scientist lived among the natives for months forms a fascinating narrative.

REVELATIONS of a WIFE

by ADELE GARRISON.

Suppose he should dare! I shivered at the thought. But the superior brain won. I heard only one word, long, long drawn out from Ernest:

"So-o-o!"
I knew that the ferret-faced youth had succeeded in cowering the other man by the steady, piercing gaze of his eyes, for he had uttered no other word than the triumphant monosyllable.

With nerves a-tingle, muscles quivering with impatience, I waited until they had left the staircase. Then, no longer afraid that my movements would be heard, I hurried to the window, which fortunately looked down into the inn lawn.

An auto, whose lines were not unlike those of the trolley, and beside it stood the officer who had come to my assistance in the unpleasant trolley episode.

Belief blossomed unutterable, seized me as I saw in the inn yard below the tall, lanky figure of the young army officer who had befriended me in the unpleasant incident of the trolley car.

His presence there, of course, might be an accident, but, absurd as the theory was, I couldn't help the conjecture that he had found out where I went, and remembering that I must be miles from home, with no chance, on account of Pete, of taking the trolley, had come back to offer me the courtesy of his car.

I forgot that I had never seen him until the trolley incident. It seemed, rather, as if he were an old friend come to my aid. And how wonderful it was to see an honest American face instead of the plotting creatures who had imprisoned me.

I saw Ernest hurry from the house and go up to the young officer. Saw the greeting, perfunctory upon the officer's part, full of furtive watchfulness on the side of the ferret-faced youth.

And the I realized that I could not hear a word they were saying. I must do something, and that immediately, for, of course, if the officer were asking for me, Ernest would deny all knowledge of my whereabouts.

MADGE VENTURES DOWN.

I faced the situation with trembling, but determined nerves. If Otto had observed Ernest he was safely out of the way, for he would be busy at his station in the wireless, ready to blow up the whole thing if Ernest should give him the word.

But were the others all gone? Up on the answer to that question rested not only my life, but that of the young officer below, for these were desperate people, and would not stop at murder if they could escape thereby. The plan had been for everybody but Ernest and Madge to get out quietly, and I was the only one who might have been changed.

However, I had no choice. No matter who lurked upon the stairs or below, I must make the attempt to get to the office of the young officer talking with Ernest.

I took the small pistol Mme. Hofer had put into my coat and put it into the pocket of my skirt, where it could use as an instant's distraction. Then, ridding myself of the last vestige of the bonds which Mme. Hofer had put on me, I crept as noiselessly as I could to the door, and with infinite precaution slipped the skeleton key she had thrust down my neck into the lock of the door.

A DARING PLAN.
The lock had been well oiled and the key turned in it easily and without noise. I swung the door open, then, as I saw no one in the staircase, hurried down the steps to the little sheltered recess near the hall door.

There I stopped for a moment to plan my next move, for the daring plan had flashed upon me to effect the capture of Ernest and Otto, if it were possible to do so, before Ernest had the chance to give the freed signal to Otto, and then, carefully, but the whole place seemed deserted. And then I made a sudden dash resolve. Ernest was standing, facing the lieutenant, and had his back to me.

Conversation and save the psychological moment to carry out my purpose. The recess had a casement window, half open, fortunately for me, and I could hear what the man was saying without being visible myself.

"How long ago did you say the lady left?" the officer was asking. "I'm afraid I didn't listen carefully."

"About twenty minutes," Ernest answered, pleasantly enough, but betraying to my ear strong evidence of anxiety.

"And which way did she go?" "Over in that direction," to the officer, Ernest replied glibly.

The officer's face didn't change expression, but for some reason, call it occult, telepathic or what you will, I knew that Ernest was with him. He began to suspect the ferret-faced youth.

"But his tone was nonchalant itself as he continued: 'Please pardon me for asking so many questions, but I don't see here I can have missed her. But on happen to notice whether she had a bull terrier with her?'

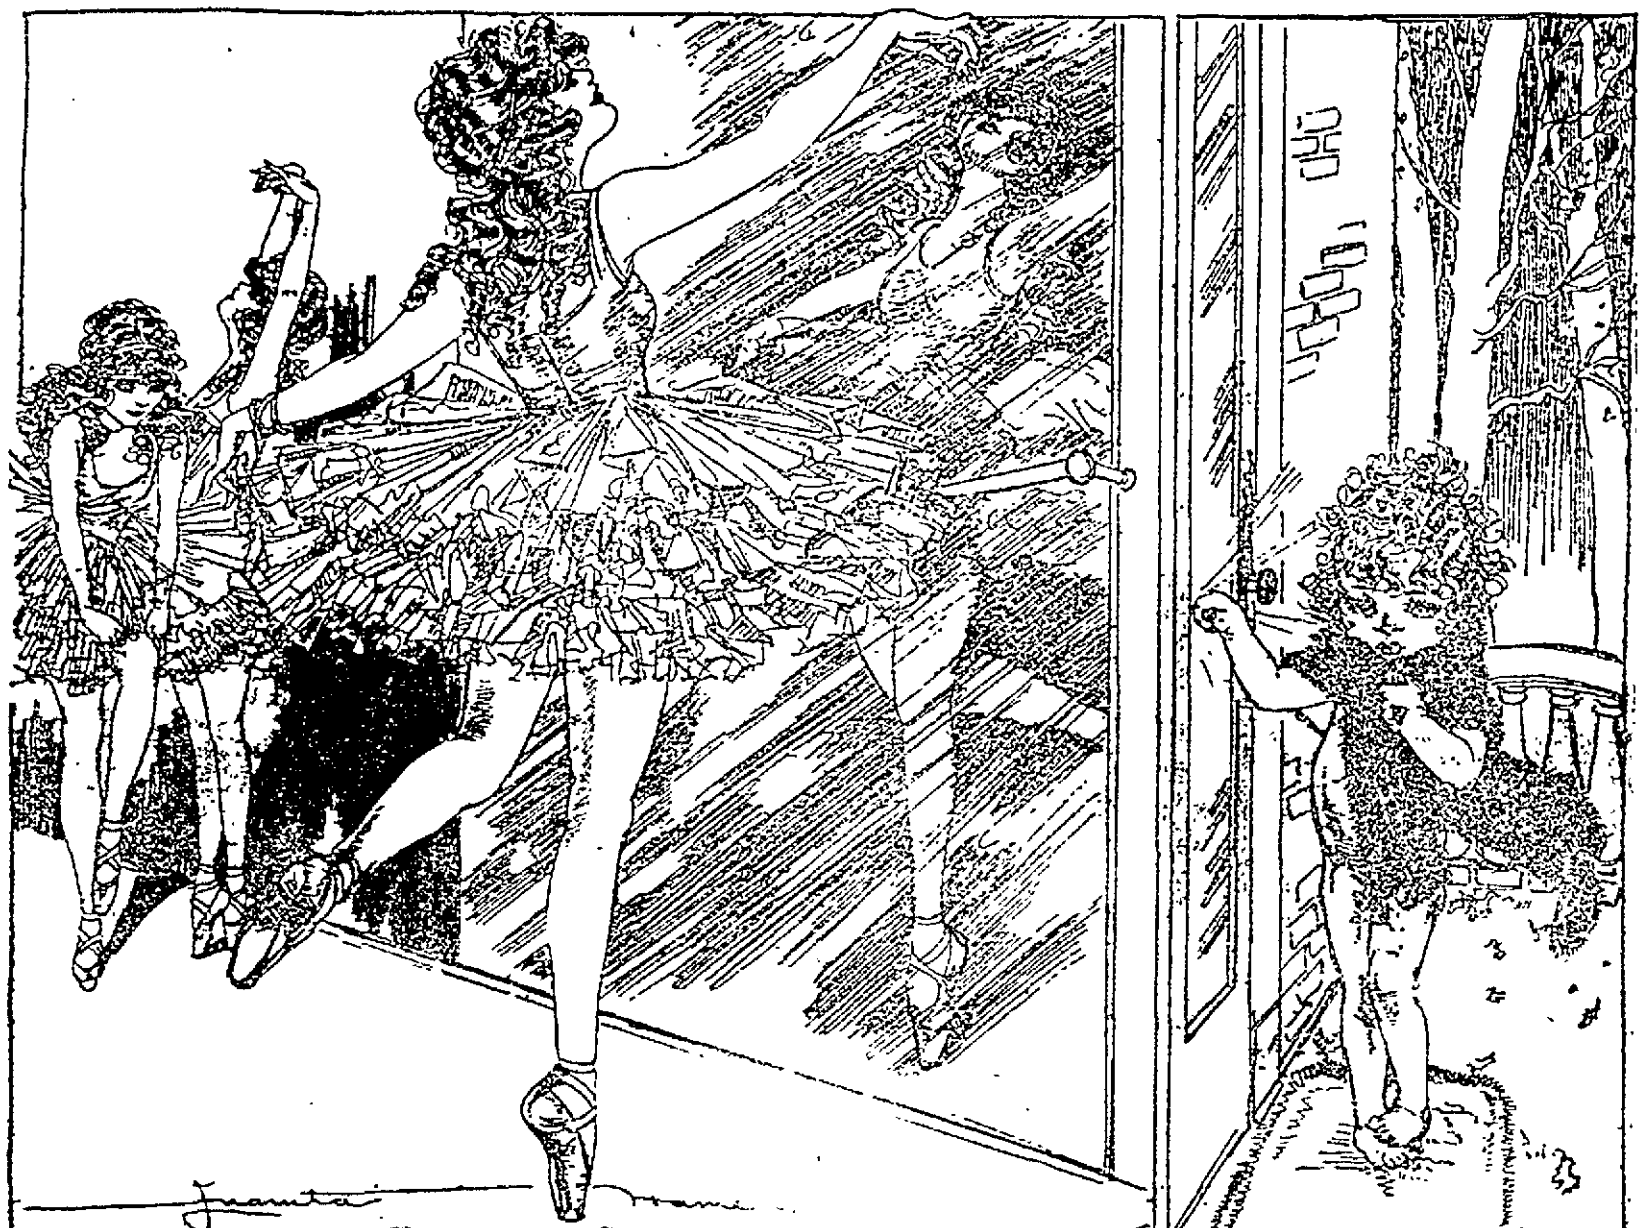

Ernest didn't hesitate. "Oh, yes, the bolshoi was with her. He wouldn't leave her." From the rear of the house came long-drawn howl as of a dog in pain.

As Pete's howl rose upon the air, the ferret-faced youth started and darted around in the direction of the sound. Then, seemingly without that he was betraying him, he faced the young army officer, and I noticed a furtive movement of his hand towards a pocket which I was sure concealed weapons.

LOVE AND AMBITION

By Juanita Hamel

PERHAPS you have known her—the ambitious one—who has high she will be the greatest emotional actress the world has known. But have a hopes that her twinkling toes will carry her to the far golden pinnacle care, oh you ambitious one. Love, like opportunity, may knock at your door of Fame. Or perhaps she is studying the drama and dreams of the day when and then be on his way, and—never more return.

GARY'S BEDTIME STORY

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE PEARS

(By HOWARD R. GARIS.)

"My goodness me, sakes alive and some honey cake ice cream!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly Longears one day, as he hopped out into the kitchen of the hollow stump bungalow, where Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzy was cooking something on the stove.

"What's the matter?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Did you fall in the rain water barrel?"

"Oh, no," answered Uncle Wiggly. "But what are you cooking that smells so good, Nurse Jane?"

"I'm making a little bit of berry shortcake, orange marmalade and ketchup."

"Well, it's something like all of those," laughed Nurse Jane, as she stirred something cooking in a big iron kettle on the stove. "I am making spiced pears, and I'm glad you came in."

"So am I," exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "I don't know that I like spiced pears, but I am willing to learn. Yum! Yum!"

"Oh, they aren't ready to eat yet, Uncle Wiggly!" said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "They are only partly cooked. But the reason I am glad you came in just now is that you would stand here by the stove and stir these spiced pears so they will not burn."

"Right gladly will I do that!" promised Uncle Wiggly, with a nod and polite bow of his twinkling nose. "I shall stir the spiced pears as long as you want me to, Nurse Jane."

"Oh, it will not be very long," spoke the muskrat lady. "I need just a little more time, and then I'll run across the woods and borrow some from Mrs. Longtail, the mouse lady."

"And you want me to stir the spiced pears until you come back, is that it?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"That's it," answered Nurse Jane. "I won't be gone very long. The pears are almost cooked. Just a dash more of vinegar and a sprinkle of sugar, which I'll get from Mrs. Longtail, and there they are cooked and ready to eat when they are cool."

So while Nurse Jane hurried across the little clump of woods across from the hollow stump bungalow, Uncle Wiggly stood near the stove, stirring the spiced pears. They kept on smelling better and better, and nicer and nicer, and more and more spicy, and Mr. Longears was thinking how good they would taste, with some lettuce, bread and carrot butter, when, all of a sudden, something jumped down in through the open window of the bungalow kitchen.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly, turning around to see who it was. "You must be in a great hurry, Nurse Jane, to jump in the window that way!"

"Oh, ho! I am in a hurry!" cried a snippy voice. "I'm in a hurry to get your spiced pears, and I don't want to wait for them!"

"Nurse Jane, at all, but the bad old Skeezicks!"

"Oh, dear me!" cried Uncle Wiggly, but he didn't stop stirring the spiced pears on the stove. "Please go and don't bother me!" he begged the Skeezicks. "I am very busy helping Nurse Jane."

"Yes, and I am going to very busy in a minute, helping myself to some of your ears!" cried the Skeezicks, and they ran off.

"Dear me! This is most unfortunate!" said Uncle Wiggly. "Oh, I know what I'll do!" he said to himself, as he watched the kettle of spiced pears bubbling. "I'll ask the Skeezicks to have some, and when he takes a taste they'll be so hot

A Letter-Play by Richard Wightman

Poise--Direction--Impact

HOMELAND.

TO J. O. B.
Behold the hawk with his unreasoned ways, and yet adept in what he wills to do.

Two hundred feet above the glassy waters of the lake he hangs, as if suspended from the sky's blue dome by an invisible wire. Beneath him, in the sheening shallows, a trout lies under the lee of a great stone. The human eye would toil to see that trout, but to the eye of the hawk he lies clear against the sandy shoal. And then—the invisible wire breaks! Straight down the hawk drops, as if he were lead instead of flesh and feathers. In another instant, out of the spray of the resultant splash he rises, winging now, and in his lowered talons, as he flies toward the feast-bough of the dead oak in the swamp, you catch the gleam of silver!

Three things in that fine feat appeal to me and make me wise. The names of these three things are Poise, Direction, Impact—the patient hovering, the accurate descent, the timely seizure. I would not be a hawk, but rather a man with a hawk's ways—calm in the hunt for legitimate prey, direct in approach when once that prey is sighted, and powerful to take when the moment for taking has come.

In the battle of life no untested soul can win; no wavering advance will make the foreman ours; no indecisive attack will avail.

So, Jim, to the hawk I give my thanks for what he taught me, and in my business will use it as often as I rightly may.

A department of QUESTION & ANSWER

Editor THE TRIBUNE—I am an American and married a man who was a citizen, who has since died. I have to take out naturalization papers in order to again become a citizen.

MRS. A. E. CHRISTIANSEN.

The death of your husband restores your status as an American. You are required under the law, in order to confirm your citizenship, to register at the office of the county clerk, making a declaration of your status.

Editor THE TRIBUNE—I would like to know if a wireless can be operated now, or has the government stopped the use of them?

Amateurs may put up receiving apparatus, but transmitters are not allowed.

That he'll burn his tongue and then he won't want any of my sauce. I'll do that."

So Uncle Wiggly, very politely said:

"Won't you have a little of Nurse Jane's spiced pears before you take any of my sauce, Mr. Skeezick?"

"O, ho! No indeed I won't!" cried the Skeezicks. "I know how you fooled my friend, the Pipsisewah, giving him plum pie with stones in it. You don't catch me that way! Here I come for your sauce! I don't want any spiced pears!"

He was just going to grab Uncle Wiggly when, all of a sudden, in through the open window, flew a lot of stinging bees, and wasps and hornets and yellow-jackets and long-thin stinging needles. And they all swooped down on the Skeezicks and they stung him so hard that the bad chap cried: "Wow! Wow! wow!" three times, just like that, and out of the window he jumped, not hurting Uncle Wiggly at all.

"O, I'm so glad you came in time to save me!" said Mr. Longears to the bees, the wasps, the hornets and stinging needles, who, of course, wouldn't hurt the bunny.

"Yes, we always come around whenever we smell spiced pears cooking," said Mr. B. Umbie Bee. "We just can't help it. And when we smell the spicy smells from your bungalow today, we just buzzed along, hoping you or Nurse Jane would give up a few drops of the juice to flavor our honey with."

"Have as much as you like," cried Uncle Wiggly, in his most jolly voice, and when Nurse Jane came back, with the sugar and vinegar, she finished the spiced pears, and the bees and wasps had as much of the juice as they liked. And the Skeezicks didn't have a smitch. Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

3 Minute Journeys

Everything in China is dated from the long ago, and so even years have a real meaning of honor among the Chinese. This is perhaps why Li Hung Chang—once minister to this country from the Celestial empire—frequently inquired even of our ladies "How old are you?" The effect upon those who desired to be thought younger than they really were may be imagined. But in China to be "taken for older" than you are is the height of flattery.

Strange as it may seem, in the light of this fact, more are content to make one the head of the family. In China marriages are contracted at very early ages, and to remain unmarried is considered a grievous sin. For this reason it frequently happens that a middle-aged man's uncle may be a mere baby, or he may address as "grandmother" a miss half his age.

The reason for this latter oddity lies in the fact that sometimes an old man will marry a very young girl. Or it may be due to the custom of calling by such an "honorable" name one who belongs to the more direct line of descent from a common grandfather.

It was the "politeness" that is inherent in all well-bred Chinese that made them eager to follow the old Empress Dowager's demand that every one she liked should call her "old ancestor," or give her the reverent title of "old Buddha."

These oddities are all outgrowths of the same general reverence for the past and its reverence for things hallowed by the flight of years. But in them we can find a reason for the persistence of the Chinese—when in their own country—of politely stringing out insistences that some one they meet is many, many years older than the age they admit.

Sometimes a Chinese will most politely refuse to believe a guest as anywhere near the age he professes, and will maintain his belief by frequently returning to the subject. To many a European it is most annoying. Some have believed the Chinese doubted his word, when in reality it was merely an excess of politeness that made him insist. For to the Chinese advancing years are glory.

TRIBUNE'S DAILY ALMANAC

OCTOBER FIRST.
Coronation of October 1—monarch of thirty-one days. One year ago this date the War Industries Board fixed arbitrarily the price of shoes. Come on back, war! Germans retreating all along the line, October 1, 1918. Henry Clay Work, composer, earned the undying love of our Southern citizens when he wrote "March Through Georgia." Born today, 1832.

CHILD JINGLE FOR ADULTS.
Sugar bowls have begun to vanish on restaurant tables, and small dishes, containing four small squares of the sweetener, are appearing instead.

Big bowl of half-cubes—always sure of more—
Sugar shortage comes along—then there are four.
Four little half-cubes, pitiful to see.
More sugar shortage—then there are three.
Three tiny sugar squares—very, very few—
Beet shortage—in the air—now there are two.
Two lonesome cubelets, basking in the sun—
Famine clouds darken skies—now there is one.
One little sugar cube, in any awful fix,
Weeps himself to nothing—now we have nix.

LET'S SAVE AB IT FOR WEDDINGS, THOUGH.
Maybe it's out of order to ship coals to Newcastle, but, with a $27,000,000 California rice crop, it looks as if Japan and China are due for some Oriental stipe, grown in the far west.

THE NEW MOTOR LAWS.
After a session with the latest automobile regulations, C. A. L. feels this way about it: Take fifteen unit-feet of light, Divide by root of "x," And add the cosine of the arc— Thus, if the total checks, Take out the "n-th root" of the sum. And add it—if it's right, That's how you tell if the law allows You to use your auto-light.

Put down six—now let me see— Add the log of fifty-three; Raise to fifteenth power of "A," Multiply by miles per day. (Thus you get the engine rate.) Decrease the total sixty-eight, Watch that angle—watch that line, Either that or pay a fine!

IF you are an expert in the rules Of Plane Trigonulation, Or "Trig"—of Higher Calculus, Then, maybe, you can work these "Sum."

YOU'RE lucky, yes, because You're able, then, to run your car And know the auto laws!

MANLINESS.
Stick through the heat of it, hammer and beat of it, play out the game to the end.

Stand to the test of it, making the best of it, you have a name to defend. Heart and soul go for it, you have a show for it, fight just as hard as you can.

But cherish no doubt of it, you can come out of it, failure or victor—a man.

Make a fair fight of it, keep to the right of it, honestly battle to win. But don't let the prize of it, glitter and size of it, tempt you to shame or to sin;

Better by far to be short of the victory, better to bow to defeat Than falsely get hold of it, knowing the gold of it carries the name of a cheat.

Hold yourself high above cheering and money-love, want something more than a goal;

Treasure your honest name more than a victor's fame—nothing can pay for your soul.

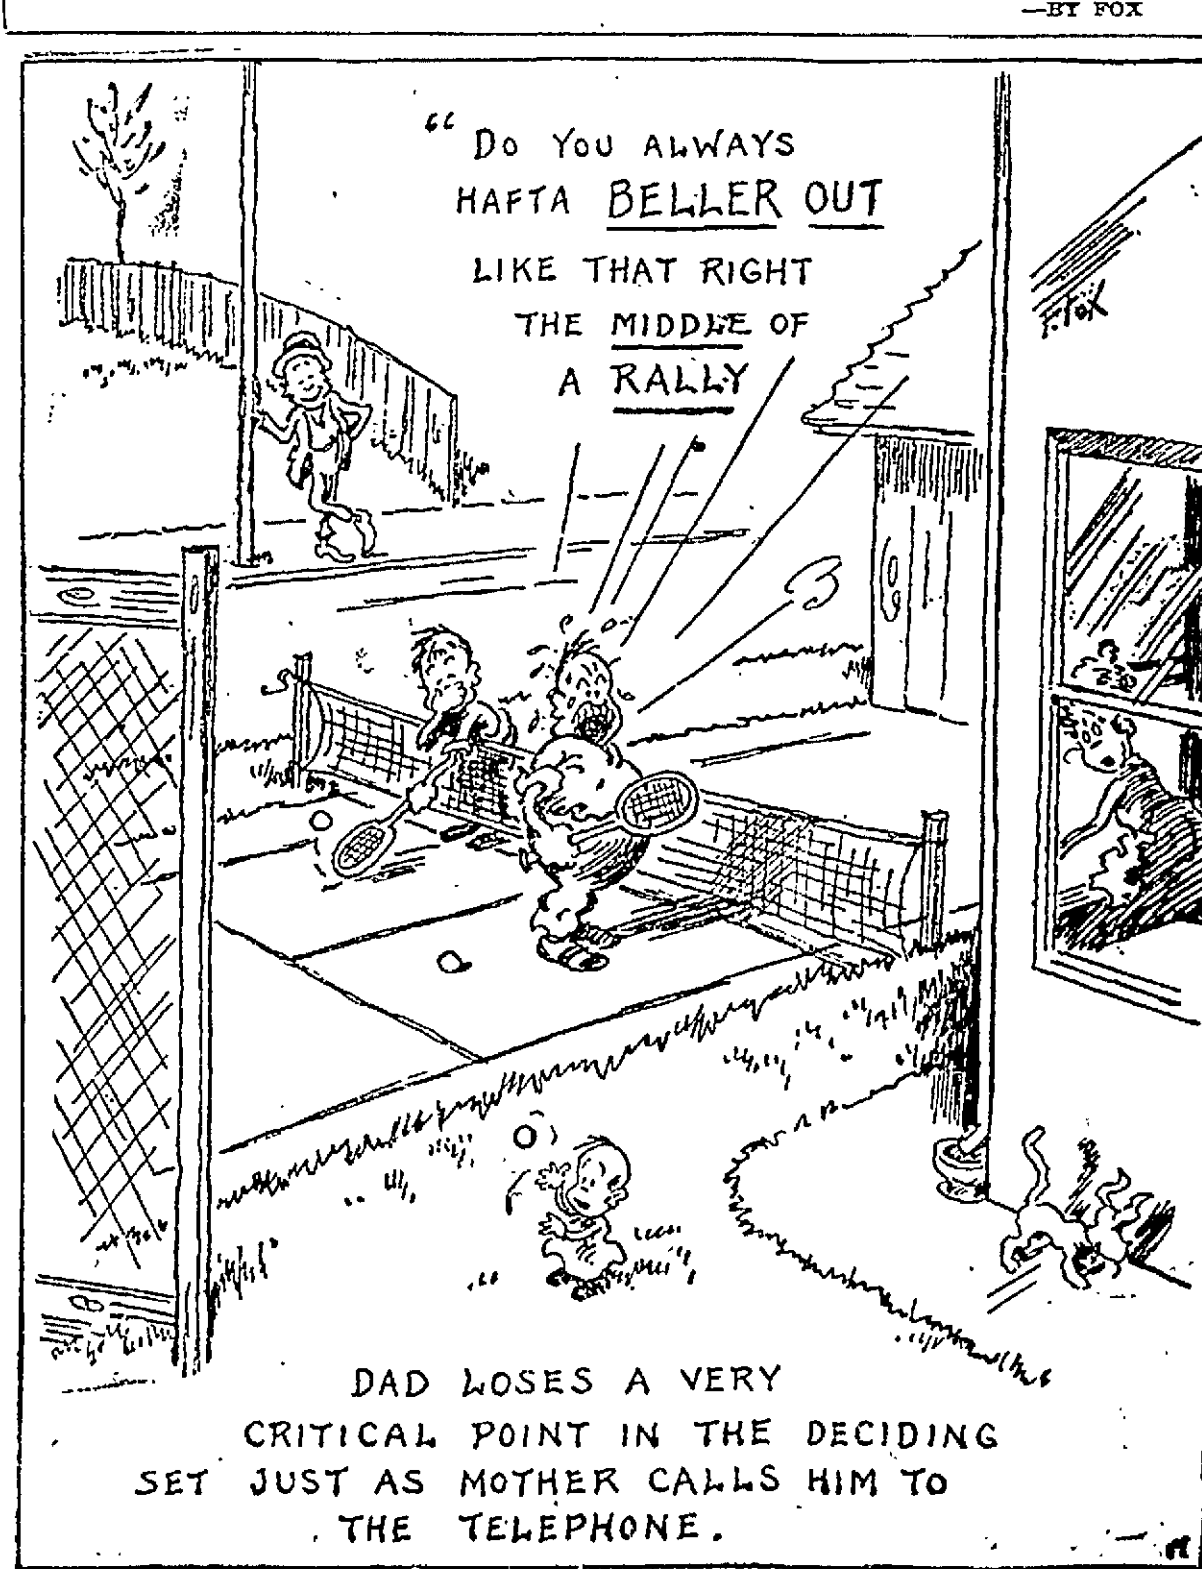

Then if you're beaten down, failing to gain the crown, you can come homeward in pride.

Smiling and head-erect, owning your self-respect, knowing that truly you tried.

Rough started his baseball career a right handed thrower, but broke in right arm. Folk said his baseball days were over, but Eddie set to work to learn how to throw left handed. His southpaw whip has turned back many a base runner and he is regarded as one of the best throwing outfielders in the circuit.

His batting has been one of the important factors in the climb of the Cinel Reds to pennantville. One of the odd features about Rough's career is that the White Sox had him at one time, but couldn't see him as a coming star.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1919.

THE LABOR CONFERENCE.

Just what concrete results will follow the Washington conference of labor and capital which the President has called for October 6 is impossible to foretell. It may accomplish much and again it may be a disappointment. But whatever the outcome it is promising to observe the cordial spirit in which the suggestion has been accepted on all sides. There is plainly indicated a willingness of employers and employees to get together and discuss their common problems in a straightforward, enlightened manner.

If it produces nothing else the conference ought to increase understanding of the fact that continual warfare between the members of a body will end in certain destruction of that body. It ought to expose in the full light of day the things that are stupid and destructive and if this is done it seems impossible that any factor of the industrial life of the country will deliberately choose the stupid and destructive way.

Generally speaking the conference will be fairly representative of the elements directly concerned in a conference with the avowed purposes of that to be held in Washington. It is to consist of forty-five members, five of which are to be appointed by the National Industrial Conference Board, five by the United States Chamber of Commerce, three by the associated farmers, two by the Investment Bankers' Association, fifteen by the American Federation of Labor and fifteen by the President of the United States. Thus the President of the United States and the president of the American Federation of Labor, each have the naming of one-third of the delegates to the conference, and each has named as many delegates as all the other groups combined.

President Gompers has selected his delegates and they are all able representatives of organized labor. The President has named the fifteen allotted to him, all of which may be good selections but some of whom are known principally for their political activities. And yet it is from this group—the President's appointments—the onlooking neutral public must expect the important work of bringing about compromises between the other two more or less antagonistic groups. From it is expected to emanate the spirit of good will and intelligent, patiently given direction toward constructive action.

What will appeal to many persons as a lamentable omission in the makeup of this conference is the appointment of a representative of the innocent public which is not affiliated either with the employing group or the organized wage earners. Perhaps the President intended that his appointees should also consider the interest of the neutrals. But that must await subsequent development.

NEW OUTLOOK FOR WOMEN.

When the women of France donned overalls and went to work in the munition factories, as drivers of automobiles, carts and ambulances, as train conductors, policemen and farmers, there was much discussion to the effect that French women would never go back to that pre-war condition wherein only two professions for them existed—marriage and teaching. The predictions of reform are now being verified.

A few days ago 122 French girls arrived in the United States. They were holders of scholarships, won in competitive examinations, for American colleges. These girls have come to this country under the auspices of the Association of American Colleges. They are already fairly well advanced in academic work; all of them have their baccalaureate degree and quite a number hold a master's degree. Those that are not prepared for graduate study in American colleges will enter the junior or senior classes.

This is only a beginning, but it is significant. The French government is now offering twenty-four scholarships to American girls in French universities. The number of French girls coming to the United States to study will increase rapidly, both under private and public auspices. The trend of greater social and intellectual unity between the French and American people has definitely set and the benefits therefrom will be mutual.

EDUCATION OF THE FILIPINOS.

The government of the Philippine Islands has just enacted a law providing for the expenditure in the interest of public education of $15,000,000 during the next five years, this in addition to the regular appropriations. A considerable portion of this extra appropriation will be devoted to the training of school teachers, while some of it will go to provide a thirty per cent increase in the salary of teachers, now so low as to barely provide the means of a livelihood, and to free parents of the burden of tuition charges for the intermediate schools.

Philippine officialdom and the people have been awakened to renewed energy in creating adequate school facilities by a serious crisis in the public education system. The war had a distressing effect on the teaching corps. Many teachers were drawn into government work in the islands, while others came to the United States to engage in war duties. The influenza epidemic took off 252 teachers. The cost of living made it impossible for many American teachers to remain in the Philippine schools at existing salaries. In general schools of the Philippines suffered the same effects from the war as did the schools of the States.

Now a bigger program than ever has been adopted. New normal schools for the training of teachers are to be established. Elementary school facilities will be doubled. Teachers are to be sent to the United States for post-graduate instruction. Eight hundred scholarships have been established for the training of teachers of agriculture. The money for this expansion of the school facilities is to be raised by taxation. There is plenty of money in the Philippines now, for the people are prosperous, and the only problem is to devise means for turning the revenue into the proper channels.

It appears from the annual report of the Director of Education that there are at present 600,000 Philippine children attending English-speaking schools. In three more years, it is predicted, the majority of both houses of the legislature will be speaking English. The day apparently is near at hand when English will be the "official" language of the Filipinos. In 1898 the principal diet of the Filipino was rice, eaten from bowls on the floor of a bamboo hut. Today nearly every one is pursuing an education in diversified farming and the value of agricultural products has increased several times in the last twenty years. Last year the attendance at garden day celebrations was 1,675,396. Comparable progress is being made in the arts and crafts.

Now comes the awakening of the war and the new impetus to further development. If the Filipinos continue persistently in their plans for self-improvement the day is not very remote when their plea for the privilege of complete self-government will deserve a cordial response. Their work at home is doing far more to advance that day than the political propagandists who have established a lobby in Washington.

AMERICA IN FRANCE.

American Independence Hall was formally inaugurated last week in the Palace of Versailles, France. The American Ambassador participated in the ceremonies, as did Mr. Louis Laferte, French minister of fine arts and many other distinguished Frenchmen. This hall, dedicated to the good will of France for America, symbolizes to the casual eye the historic relations between the two republics.

The outstanding episodes in Franco-American relations are written in the art objects that have found a home in this sanctuary of history. The period in which Frenchmen came to the aid of the American colonies with fighting men and money is recalled by a large portrait of Louis XVI, one of Duplessis' famous works Lafayette and Rochambeau are present in their revolutionary uniforms. Facing them is a statue of Washington, a gift from the State of Virginia, a bronze replica of Houdon's marble at Mount Vernon. A life-size portrait of Washington stands above the statue. It is the intention of the French government to install portraits of Americans made famous in the late war in which America and France fought as comrades.

But American Independence Hall in the Palace of Versailles signifies more than the mere historic record of the common struggles of France and the United States. It speaks of a spiritual comradeship which surely will endure until the destiny of the two peoples is completed.

Premier Clemenceau said in the French chamber of deputies a few days ago that, regardless of what happened in connection with the peace treaty, he was willing to place his trust in the spontaneous judgment of the American people if France should ever again be called to face a great crisis—or words to that effect. Clemenceau is right. His confidence will be justified. He is right because back of his statement is the consciousness that the French people will not be wrong on great questions and therefore will not fail to merit the sympathy and support of their allies on this side the Atlantic.

The dedication of American Independence Hall by France is a pledge that her government and people will always strive to be right and direct their energies to the same high purposes and ideals of civilization that have long been the foundation of the friendship between them and America.

NOTES and COMMENT

You get an idea from a heading that the decision of the Farmers' Association to "leave the milk interests to make their own defense" is a sort of heartless desertion; but on reflection, consumers will concede that the milkmen have shown entire ability to take care of themselves.

"Italy's deputies at fistcluffs on peace plans." An impressive instance of a purpose to have peace if it has to be fought for.

It would not be supposed that in this State of light and intelligence, where learning is carried to the uttermost corners, there are a hundred thousand who can neither read nor write. That is what the state superintendent of public instruction reports, and it is a surprising fact, albeit, the number is undoubtedly less than that of other States, certainly less than most countries.

Von Brincken's confession isn't much use now. It merely confirms something of which everybody was satisfied. That it is made in a wild effort to escape deportation, through fear of what they may do to him back in his native country, detracts further from its importance, if it does not weaken its reliability.

The President is still physically under the weather, but not otherwise. He is still determined to see it through, just like Mr. Brunting. The League of Nations covenant is, of course, referred to.

Omaha proposes a real probe in the matter of the late riots. Which means that it will go to the bottom and unearth those really guilty. After it unearths them it is assured there will be an adequate follow-up. Too many of these probes dwindle away and have no outcome.

We read of the death of a renowned porker in Iowa, which was insured for $10,000. The general impression was that all these previous animals were butchered, worked up into hams and bacon and sold to a hapless consuming public. However, some understanding of the reason for the soaring prices may be gained from this incident.

Things are not yet as bad in this country as they are in England, with the outlook justifying the prediction that it will not become as bad. It is a good time to be an optimist, with the faith that the American sense of fairness, of life and let live, will finally regain sway.

Mr. Chester Rowell starts an editorial this way: "At discreet intervals the Republican has ventured some modest observations on the evolution of sartorial bifurcation in women—in other words, of the successive approaches to pants. Originally, no doubt, women had the same number of legs as men. It is reported, on accredited authority, that this was the case with Eve, at least prior to the fig-leaf episode; and those who have traveled in the South Seas, where the ceremonial garb of women is still fabricated, if not of fig leaves, of pandanus leaves, (which are much slenderer) can testify that the same condition still obtains in those isolated Edens."

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

Gabriele d'Annunzio must be having the time of his life as chief of the rebels at Fiume. A Dalmatian by origin, he has a hereditary interest in trans-Adriatic Italianism, though he was born himself at Pescara, on the Italian side, in the isolated and the mostly mountainous province of Abruzzi. But chiefly, all his life, he has been a student of his own emotions, and of the fancied inner life of imaginary personages, with the morbid problems of existence—I resno Republican.

In the face of present prices for wine grapes, we wonder what is to become of the argument that prohibition would ruin the vineyard. The growers are now finding a ready market at from $25 to $37.50 per ton, as against $20, and under, in former years. The grapes, it is said, are to be shipped east for the private manufacture of wine, that is, wine for home consumption, something that will be permitted according to present interpretation of the laws—Bakersfield Californian.

Professor David Todd of Amherst College is in the spotlight this minute as the distinguished gentleman who is going up in a balloon 50,000 feet this fall in an attempt to get into communication with Mars. Good Lord, haven't we trouble enough without trying to drag in another planet?—Stockton Record.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY THREATENED.

A casual news item conveys the information that Chicago is threatened by a bandits' strike.

It appears that four gentlemen of the road have taken a wayfarer in the Windy City the other night and were disgusted and disappointed to discover that he had only seventy-five cents available for their purpose. Whereupon they disgustedly remarked that if conditions did not improve soon they would go on strike.

The danger from this strike is of course purely local. Banditry is one of Chicago's most flourishing industries and if the members of the bandit profession should suddenly decide to quit work, there must necessarily be a slump that may be reflected severely upon other lines of business, such as second-hand stores, pawn shops, fences and other institutions.

Neighboring cities are interested in the threatened walkout of Chicago bandits of course from the fact that during the period of inactivity many of the strikers will be likely to seek work in other communities and endeavor to build up the industry as they have in Hill Thompson's ballad—Minneapolis Sentinel.

TODAY 20 YEARS AGO

The Anti-Saloon League pays a first installment of $450 into the treasury of the city of Berkeley, making good the amount of revenue lost through the closing of saloons today.

Post Office Department in Washington for the present refuses to place Golden Gate and Alden post offices under Oakland postmaster, delaying free delivery to 10,000 Oakland residents.

Alameda tax levy is placed at $1.16 on a valuation of $11,050,822 against $1.05 on a valuation of $12,384,597 of 1918 year.

Saloonmen are cautioned to observe the law which forbids the selling of liquor to Indians.

THE SOLDIERS' GOD.

A power above the power of man is in the universe; It never had a cradle, it will never need a hearse. Our minds search out its nature and our hearts long for its love. And so we say Almighty God is in his home above.

Our hearts have grown much larger since those millions bled or died. Because we saw all nations fight so bravely side by side.

The surgeons drew no color line, nor slighted friend or foe. The nurses cared in love for all—and such a God we know. The Baptists do not own the God we soldiers found in France, nor does our God to bishops give more than an even chance. The Moslems, Buddhists, Hebrews, oh, what is there in a name? The Catholics, the Methodists, all look to God the same. The God who walked along the road where shells were flying. Told us that he had come to earth to bind our wounds at last; And that, while here, he would reveal to those who understand There is one God—and only one—for every church and land—Samuel Hamill Wood in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

BOSTON, RIOT CLEAN.

It may be a temptation for Boston to smooth over the strike of its policemen. But if this is done a poisonous precedent will have been set and the whole country will some day pay for it.

Poston has also a fine chance to renovate its police force with some splendid young, vigorous overseas men.—Chicago Tribune.

Too Neighborly.

"Those Neighbors are altogether too neighborly." "Oh, why, I thought I heard you prating them up to the skies." "So you did. But the other night they gave a dinner and borrowed our cook."

"Well?"

"And they've forgotten to return her."—Boston Transcript.

THE UNDAUNTED JOURNALIST.

Apparently a little art education would not be amiss among our country proofreaders. One rural sheet says: "Last night the pastor took as his subject that well-known picture, 'The Last Supper,' by Dr. Vinci."

Another informs us that "The sermons of the altar is composed of seven gilt panels of Fra and Jellico's angels."

A third newspaper, reviewing the performance of a visiting orchestra says: "Among the pieces played was Grieg's 'A's Death.' This must be a companion piece to the tune the old cow died on.—Boston Transcript.

INDUSTRIAL NEWS EAST AND WEST

GUNS ARE MADE BY STEEL STOCKS AND EQUIPMENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Stocks were active and strong at the opening of today's session, the buying movement embracing an unusual variety of issues. The most conspicuous feature was United Retail Stores, of which one block of 9000 shares changed hands at 100, a gain of 10 points. Another noteworthy feature was Worthington Pump, 3500 shares being sold at 100, a gain of 10 points. Crucible Steel was inclined to react at the outset, but immediately recovered its ground, rising 9 points, a new high record, to 225. Immediate reaction was also seen in shipbuilding stocks and equipment, which rose 5 points to 100 in the first half hour. The trend of the day's trading followed.

FORENOON—The early rise, which resulted from what Wall Street considered a recovery in the money market, money tendencies, induced extensive profit taking. Reactions of 2 to 5 points were seen in many issues, including United Retail Stores, which made an extreme advance of 9 points. United States Steel forfeited its 1-point gain, and declined 1 point, midway between the high and low. Impressive buying of investment and speculative rails, however, was irregular all the second hour.

AFTERNOON—During the less active session with call money fairly offered at 6 per cent, leaders experienced another setback. Crucible Steel virtually all of its gain, American Tobacco, tobacco stocks, and Mexican Petroleum, Texas Co., and Atlantic Gulf & Pacific Paper shares were strong with rails.
